

Kalahari Plains Camp - Central Kalahari Reserve

Wilderness Adventures

The Central Kalahari Game Reserve (CKGR) offers one of the most remote and unspoilt experiences on the African continent. At 52 800km² this reserve is one of the largest in the world.

Opening in November 2008, the Kalahari Plains Camp is a rustic tented camp situated in a remote part of this productive and diverse protected area. The landscape and topography consists of flat grasslands and undulating vegetated dunes teeming with a multitude of antelope species and large predators. This area is characterized by vast open grassy plains, seasonal pans, wooded acacia islands, prehistoric scrub-covered dunes and fossil riverbeds.

During the summer months the northern part of the CKGR, where Kalahari Plains Camp is situated, offers some of the best wildlife viewing in Botswana. At this time of year these verdant flatlands are alive with aggregations of gemsbok, springbok and blue wildebeest. Predator concentrations are also high and sightings of the almost mythical black-maned Kalahari lions are complemented with some of the best cheetah viewing in Africa. Wild dog and leopard are seen on occasion and other mammal possibilities include southern giraffe, steenbok, red hartebeest and charismatic ground squirrels and meerkats (suricates).
