

Sayari Camp

Sayari is Kiswahili for “universe/planet”, capturing the vast plains and endless skies in which the camp is immersed. The vast wilderness of the Serengeti hosts one of the worlds great wonders – the Great Migration, largest concentration of wildlife in the world that moves through the Serengeti eco-system over hundreds of miles. Sayari Camp is a seasonal camp that follows the migratory patterns. From December to March the camp operates in the southern plains, and then relocates to the northern Serengeti from June through December. Here you will have the feel and service of the camp itself but also on the Mara River area, which is full of game and completely undisturbed by any other vehicles.

Sayari Camp’s very spacious 15 luxury tents are equipped with contemporary, comfortable furniture. The en suite bathroom has full running water with flush toilet, shower, double stone hand basins, and a free standing bath. Veranda, bed and bath in each guest tent offer panoramic views over the Serengeti. The tents are split into 2 wings - one with 9 and one with 6 tents - all of which are raised on wooden platforms to offer a spacious and extremely comfortable stay. Both wings have their own lounge and dining areas, to retain the intimacy of a small scale camp.

For groups, it is possible to book wings (or the entire camp) exclusively. The tents are very spacious

Away from the busier areas of the park, game drives, walks and fly-camping give you the majestic feeling of having the endless space all for yourself. Sayari Camp’s direct environments are regularly visited by a curious leopard and the nosy local pride of lions. The camp’s central area consists of a large, comfortable lounge with an ‘all day’ bar service, rock swimming pool and fire place as well as two ‘chill out’ areas under canvas slightly away from the main lounge to give a quiet area to read a book or bird watch. At the edge of the camp, a Suite has been put in a very private position to cater for honeymooners and guests who want to indulge in the most private of Serengeti experiences. The Suite boasts an inside and outside rock both, positioned in a secluded corner close to the raised wooden deck. A private butler will look after guests and provide private meals under the stars or offer any services as required.
