The Mivumo River Lodge is located within Africa's largest game reserve and a proclaimed world heritage site, the Selous Game Reserve in Southern Tanzania.

It comprises 12 superior rooms and 3 premium luxury suites decorated in an elegant African style of a bygone era incorporating local materials from the region. Each superior room consists of a luxurious bedroom and lounge with a private balcony offering an indoor bathroom, outdoor shower and an intimate plunge pool.

The rooms are spread out along the mighty Rufiji River to ensure privacy and exclusivity and provide a spectacular viewing location ideal for romantic getaway. The main lodge offers a lounge and library both overlooking the river, as well as an intimate dining area offering a wide selection of gourmet dinners, a la carte lunches and safari breakfast buffets.

The lodge also boasts a sundeck and plush swimming pool that offers the perfect place to relax with a good book or an afternoon gin and tonic. In the evening, the deck becomes the perfect setting for star gazing and sharing the day's adventures around the bonfire.

The Selous Game Reserve is a vast area accounting for 5% of the land mass of Tanzania contained within the reserve boundaries and the second largest conservation area in Africa, the largest game reserve on the continent and a proclaimed World Heritage Site. It has one of the largest areas set aside for wildlife preservation anywhere in the world. This is an area that naturally appeals to a photographic lens, as the waterways and plains reflect all the changing colors of the sun and attract numerous fine-feathered water birds and raptors. The spectrum of wildlife here is diverse, with plentiful populations of Elephant and Wild dog and is all the more interesting because its southern location attracts a unique combination of East and Southern African wildlife, both resident and migratory, and particularly a curious and colorful assortment of over 440 known species of birds.
