

Mt. Anderson Ranch

Set in the dramatic highveld of the Drakensberg Mountains of the Mpumalanga Province (which sweep up to the 7,500 ft Mount Anderson Peak), this 8,000 ha / 20,000 acre property in the catchments of the Kruger National Park provides an exclusive location for an unforgettable fishing and wildlife getaway. No less than five major rivers rise on the ranch providing magnificent trout fishing facilities, a wide variety of fauna and flora, and a remarkable selection of indigenous game and birdlife.

Proclaimed in 1990 as a water conservancy, this unique venture provides environmental protection to Africa's high altitude flora and fauna. Guests at Mount Anderson Ranch can enjoy a wide diversity of activities in the company of a qualified ranger/ host.

A compatible consequence of protecting the water catchments has been the outstanding trout fishing available on the property. There are extensive fishing opportunities for Brown and Rainbow trout with a total of 24 weirs, a large lake and long river catchments. The quality and diversity of the trout fishing suits all levels of ability from beginner to the more experienced. High quality fly-fishing rods and reels are available.

A wildlife safari, conducted in a 4-wheel drive vehicle or on horseback, in the mountains surrounding the homestead, will yield herds of Africa's less famous antelope including eland, black wildebeest, blesbuck, mountain reedbuck and oribi. Catch a brief glimpse of predators such as the elusive leopard, jackal or caracal. Whilst you might occasionally hear baboons barking from the cliff tops, the only disturbance to the solitude of one's trout fishing experience is caused by Africa's game approaching the streams to drink. Indigenous birdlife includes the brilliant malachite sunbird, the Cape vulture, the fish eagle and numerous species of francolin.

The pink stone, ranch-style homestead situated in the Krantzklouf valley on Mount Anderson Ranch, is totally secluded and tastefully furnished to the highest standards. The limited number of six guests have exclusive use of the house together with their own team of staff, which gives the feeling of being in a private, luxurious home.

Accommodation is in three double luxury rooms, all with en-suite bathrooms. In addition, there are two elegant, spacious lounges, a dining room, fully equipped snooker room and a terrace overlooking the tiered trout ponds, which offer stunning views, particularly at sunset. All meals and activities are included.
