

PALMWAG RHINO CAMP

Damaraland is a region of early morning mists which are generated by the clash between the icy Atlantic Ocean and the warm desert air of the Skeleton Coast. The mists drift inland along the river sand canyon, providing sustenance to the flora and fauna of the region. This comfortable is one of the best wilderness areas in Namibia.

Palmwag Rhino Camp is a luxury tented mobile camp that can be easily moved if local game movements deem it necessary. A maximum of twelve guests will have the rare pleasure of exploring this wild and remote area in the company of the dedicated conservationists hosting them, together with local trackers. The camp has large “meru” tents with en-suite facilities including bucket showers with hot water on call.

There are large populations of Hartman's mountain zebra, giraffe, Oryx, springbok and kudu. The predator population is the largest outside of the Etosha National Park with over 100 lions, cheetah, leopard, brown and spotted hyena. Bird life is prolific and diverse with most of Namibia's endemics present. This concession supports a healthy population of desert adapted black rhino and elephants.

Some of the camp activities on offer are rhino tracking on foot or by vehicle, night drives and full day outings (with a picnic lunch) on the concession.
