

SKELETON COAST CAMP

The Skeleton Coast Park is one of our planet's most inhospitable but hauntingly beautiful places; it is wild, desolate and uninhabited. The area is everything from roaring dunes, windswept plains, towering canyons and salt pans to seal colonies and shipwrecks. Over much of the past decade, access to this private, northern region of the park has been restricted. With the opening of our new Skeleton Coast Camp in April 2000, we can offer superb 4 or 5 day fly-in safaris to this region, with departures every Wednesday and Saturday.

Wilderness Safaris' Skeleton Coast Camp is located north of Mōwe Bay, in one of the region's dry riverbed, wildlife havens. Activities from this central point are centered around full day trips to the coast or inland, with a midday break for a picnic lunch. One can enjoy game drives, beach drives, exploration of shipwrecks, salt pans, towering canyons and "clay castles". Throughout the park are pockets of wildlife such as Springbok, Oryx, Ostrich and the rare desert Elephant, Brown Hyena, Jackal, and sometimes on the rare occasion cheetah. Even more fascinating are the many endemic species of plants, reptiles and insects, and the multi-colored lichens that cover the large expanses of gravel plains.

The Skeleton Coast Camp is small and exclusive with 6 luxury tented rooms that all have en-suite bathrooms providing flush loos. A shower and hot and cold running water. We do have a water shortage and a laundry service is unavailable. The central area consists of an indoor lounge/dining room and bar, and an outdoor dining area under an ancient Leadwood tree. This is one of our favourite dining spots, under endless star-filled skies that add to the humbling and inspirational experience of a Skeleton Coast safari.
